ACTIVITY AMONG THE MOTH FIGHTERS NOW.

BOSTON, July 18.—L. O. Howard, chief of the national bureau of entomology, Supt. Kilham of the Massachusetts gypsy moth service, and D. A. M. Rogers, the new special field agent appointed by Dr. Howard to direct the bug hunting work of the national government in New England, went on an inspecting tour to the Saugus bug laboratory yesterday. They will hold a conference today with E. L. Sanderson, the state entomologist of New Hampshire; W. E. Britton, state entomologist of Connecticut, and A. E. Stone, gypsy moth commissioner of Rhode Island.

By Thursday Dr. Howard expects to have a force organized that will carry out the provisions made by the last Congress for fighting the gypsy and brown-tail moths in New England. This is the inauguration of the national bug crusade here.

Mr. Rogers is one of the most experienced gypsy moth men in the country and until now has been Mr. Kilham's chief assistant. After considering whether to send on an expert in insects from Washington or a man familiar with the handling of men and with the work on the ground, Mr. Rogers, a Worcester man, was selected as knowing local conditions and thoroughly informed on this special phase of entomology.

He will have a force of men of his own who, in accordance with the terms of the statute, will "work along the main thoroughfares and prevent as well as may be the further spread of the insects." This puts the national government actively at work here.

Mr. Rogers will take over the entire state force. The arrangement for Connecticut and New Hampshire has not yet been determined but probably will be before the week is out.

The visit to Wakenfield was the most important feature of the day to the scientific men, as it was a sort of official study of the results of the rearing parasites of the obnoxious insects from European importations of parasitized larvae of the moths.

These importations began last fall and the first batches of parasites were in May. The results were somewhat as expected, though along with the parasites there were other insects hatched that destroyed the parasites—secondary parasites, as the bug experts call them—introducing a new problem.

An old house in the outskirts of Saugus was fitted up as a laboratory, where over 180,000 nests of brown-tail moths have been received, each containing about 250 caterpillars, some of which were parasitized. A large number of gypsy moth pupae were received there also.

These parasites are mostly of the "fly family," the tachina genus being well represented. There are also ichneumon flies, chalcid flies and one kind of beetle introduced that has a consuming hunger for gypsy or brown-tail moths. The experts have to go through the broods of the parasites and carefully separate from the flock the "secondaries," after which the "primary" parasites are turned loose all over the state.

Places have to be chosen where the parasites won't be choked too much until they get a footing, and, of course, where they can find an abundant supply of gypsy and brown-tail moths.

The other parasites lay their eggs on or in the caterpillars and the worm that hatches bores his way along inside the unfortunate victim, who usually dies just as the little worm reaches maturity and assumes the pupa stage. In this stage they look like elongated shot and are carefully picked out of the debris coming from Europe.

Dr. Howard and Supt. Kilham express themselves now as being most hopeful of results from these parasites, after their experiences of the past three months. They say it should take all of three years, however, to establish them and meantime provide against untimely mistakes in their introduction.

The laboratory is in charge of F. H. Mosher for Massachusetts, and E. S. G. Titus as Dr. Howard's representative. One result of yesterday's inspection will be the production of a government bulletin by Dr. Howard on the parasites, and incidentally it will outline the "largest entomological experiment ever attempted."

PARASITES FIGHTING-GYPSY AND BROWN TAIL MOTHS.

One of the most numerous of the gypsy moth parasites imported from Europe by the Massachusetts gypsy moth fighters was caught yesterday in the act of parasitizing a moth pupa; the first sure evidence that it was a success. It was at the Saugus laboratory and only one insect was observed. She was American born, has grown up in this country and among the experts, and the event was taken to mean that the race was climaxed, at least. About 50,000 of her brothers and sisters have been turned loose in the worst infested districts and are supposed now to be at work destroying the moth in a similar manner. The parasite, known as the pteromalus, an exceedingly small but very numerous species of the fly family.

Gypsy moth extermination workers are genuinely excited over the results. The discoverer is E. S. G. Titus, a Washington entomologist, the representative at the laboratory of Dr. Howard, chief of the national bureau. The good news was telephoned to the Boston gypsy moth office and Dr. Howard, who was there, expressed his jubilation and related the history of the pteromalus' immigration.

Some time last year he determined to import a number of pupae of the gypsy moth taken from districts in Europe where the moth was thoroughly under control. It was expected that a certain number of the pupae of the moths would be found to be parasitized and the parasites could then be raised around here, to keep our gypsy moths under control.

At Budapest Dr. Javonowsky told Dr. Howard that the pteromalus was a parasite of the gypsy moth, and on the strength of this unpublished observation Dr. Howard imported a lot of them, keeping them carefully under screens to prevent their escape. Last winter the experts devoted several days at Saugus to studying the problem, and when they found the insects, burrowing in the bodies of imported gypsy caterpillars there was a high old entomological time in Saugus.

The next thing was to know whether or not the parasite would "make good"—would actually parasitize here in America. It was caught in the act yesterday and there was joy again. "It means," says one of the experts, "that one of the most promising parasites of our worst insect pest is fairly established in this country. It is safe to say that of the 50,000 already turned loose at least 10 per cent. have escaped accidents and are filling gypsy moths with the seeds of death."

The pteromalus is smaller than a pinhead. The female lays eggs on the backs of caterpillars, out of which come minute maggots that eat their way into the caterpillar's body, the unwilling host dying from the experience, but living long enough to allow the parasite to come out a perfect insect, ready to sting more gypsies. A single pair can multiply in a year to several millions.

The gypsy moth fighters of New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut conferred yesterday with Dr. Howard, to plan the campaign just inaugurated in New England by the government. There were present Prof. E. D. Sanderson of New Hampshire, Prof. A. E. Stone of Rhode Island, Prof. W. E. Britton of Connecticut and D. M. Rogers, official field agent of the government in New England, with an office in Boston.

It was decided that Mr. Rogers should take over the Rhode Island force of gypsy moth fighters, if the Governor approves; that Connecticut fight its own pests for a while, as they are few, and that a man be sent to investigate in New Hampshire. In Massachusetts the most urgent field of work for the national staff will be the old Newburyport turnpike. This has been chosen for initial efforts because it is a much-used thoroughfare and autos, which are among the most efficient agencies in spreading the insects.

DINNER-DANCE AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

The dinner-dance at the Country club, which is now a bi-monthly feature proved a delightful social occasion.

Dinner was served from 5.30 to 7.30 in the pagoda to the south of the club house which was handsomely decorated with red, white and blue streamers and large vases filled with sweet peas. The menu was excellent and was the work of Adolphus Hall, the club chef.

Afterward dancing was enjoyed in the ball room, to the music of the orchestra.

THINKS THAT BODY WAS PLACED ON THE TRACK.

In the opinion of Joseph Thrasher of Peabody, a passenger on the Saugus bound car which stopped to pick up the body of James F. Doyle, alias Schaake found dead beside the street railway track on the night of June 18th, given at the inquest conducted by Associate Justice Wilbur E. Rowell in the municipal court room Monday morning at the close of the regular police court sitting, Doyle might have been struck by an automobile and his body placed beside the track in the position described so as to lead persons to believe that he had been struck by an electric car.

It was evident from the testimony of the motorman and Thrasher that his wife who were standing in the front vestibule of the closed car when the body was first sighted by Mrs. Thrasher, that the car they were in didn't strike him and that his body remained exactly in the same position upon their return to the spot as when it was first sighted, the car being bound for Salem.

Not a person or vehicle passed by the car either before or after the finding of the body, but Thrasher said that he made out very plainly the two

Trucks of an automobile, the nearest track being nine or ten feet from the body of Doyle.

It was late, about 10.20 o'clock, very foggy and cold and according to Inspector Murphy, who made investigation for the government, the motorman on the Lawrence bound car which passed the spot where Doyle lay ten minutes previous, did not see the body, although the face was towards him.

The head lay on the crushed stone of the roadbed, the trunk in some weeds and the legs and feet in the traveled roadway.
Judge Rowell said that it seemed to him that the car bearing Thrasher and his wife did not strike Doyle, but that it was possible that he might have been struck by another car or by an automobile as Thrasher had suggested. He said he wanted to hear what the motorman and conductor on the Lawrence bound car had to say and would hold the inquest open until such a time as they could be brought forward to testify.

The inquest into the death of Leon Monaghan who fell from a Boston and Northern car on Broadway in front of the Park hotel on May 23rd and died as a result of injuries received was postponed until such date as Judge Mahoney could be present to hear the evidence. Judge Rowell said that he had found that his office had been consulted by members of the monaghan family and he didn't feel that he should sit on the case. Judge Dow, he said was attorney for the Boston and Northern, therefore it was necessary for Judge Mahoney to hear it.

The Doyle inquest was opened at 10.50 o'clock. Five witnesses were sworn. Medical Examiner George W. Dow was the first to be called. He said that about 10.30 o'clock on the night of June 18th he was notified by telephone that a man had been found dead beside the tracks of the Boston and Northern street railway on the Salem line at a point this side of the ledges. He ordered the body removed to Colby's undertaking rooms and viewed it the first thing the next morning. He found a few slight scratches on the front legs, below the knees. The back of the right hand he said was deeply scratched and somewhat lacerated. In the centre of the forehead he found a loss of skin and tissue of the bone in an irregular piece two inches in diameter. The skull had been fractured.

Dr. Dow also said that he found a bottle of liquor in the man's pocket and that there was evidence that he had been drinking. The man, he judged, was over 40 years of age and a laborer.

Motorman John P. McCoy of Danvers testified that it was 10.20 o'clock, he should judge, when he first caught sight of the man about a mile this side of the Middleton line. It was foggy, the car was going towards Salem. It was very foggy and the car was traveling at about 10 miles an hour.

When he saw the body first it was about two car lengths ahead in the grass at the side of the track. The head, he should judge, was about two feet from the rail. He stopped his car in the usual way as he wasn't sure it was a man. He judged that the man must have been struck from the street side. He said he found blood clotted on the man's face and that he was dead and did not move. He said his

Trucks of an automobile, the nearest track being nine or ten feet from the body of Doyle.

It was late, about 10.20 o'clock, very foggy and cold and according to Inspector Murphy, who made investigation for the government, the motorman on the Lawrence bound car which passed the spot where Doyle lay ten minutes previous, did not see the body, although the face was towards him.

The head lay on the crushed stone of the roadbed, the trunk in some weeds and the legs and feet in the traveled roadway.
Judge Rowell said that it seemed to him that the car bearing Thrasher and his wife did not strike Doyle, but that it was possible that he might have been struck by another car or by an automobile as Thrasher had suggested. He said he wanted to hear what the motorman and conductor on the Lawrence bound car had to say and would hold the inquest open until such a time as they could be brought forward to testify.

The inquest into the death of Leon Monaghan who fell from a Boston and Northern car on Broadway in front of the Park hotel on May 23rd and died as a result of injuries received was postponed until such date as Judge Mahoney could be present to hear the evidence. Judge Rowell said that he had found that his office had been consulted by members of the monaghan family and he didn't feel that he should sit on the case. Judge Dow, he said was attorney for the Boston and Northern, therefore it was necessary for Judge Mahoney to hear it.

The Doyle inquest was opened at 10.50 o'clock. Five witnesses were sworn. Medical Examiner George W. Dow was the first to be called. He said that about 10.30 o'clock on the night of June 18th he was notified by telephone that a man had been found dead beside the tracks of the Boston and Northern street railway on the Salem line at a point this side of the ledges. He ordered the body removed to Colby's undertaking rooms and viewed it the first thing the next morning. He found a few slight scratches on the front legs, below the knees. The back of the right hand he said was deeply scratched and somewhat lacerated. In the centre of the forehead he found a loss of skin and tissue of the bone in an irregular piece two inches in diameter. The skull had been fractured.

Dr. Dow also said that he found a bottle of liquor in the man's pocket and that there was evidence that he had been drinking. The man, he judged, was over 40 years of age and a laborer.

Motorman John P. McCoy of Danvers testified that it was 10.20 o'clock, he should judge, when he first caught sight of the man about a mile this side of the Middleton line. It was foggy, the car was going towards Salem. It was very foggy and the car was traveling at about 10 miles an hour.

When he saw the body first it was about two car lengths ahead in the grass at the side of the track. The head, he should judge, was about two feet from the rail. He stopped his car in the usual way as he wasn't sure it was a man. He judged that the man must have been struck from the street side. He said he found blood clotted on the man's face and that he was dead and did not move. He said his car didn't strike him. When questioned more closely by Judge Rowell he replied, "I know my car didn't strike him. There was a foot to spare."

"I saw no one about," he said. "My car was in perfect order with a large head-light lighting the way. I don't know what caused his death."

"We passed nothing and I saw no sign of anything. There were no marks nearby or on the tracks anywhere. There was hair and blood stains on the crushed stone beneath his head. I examined the rails right away."

The conductor, Joseph M. Sullivan also of Danvers said he was on the read-end figuring up his day card when the car came to a stop and he saw his motorman get out of the front door. He helped to shift the head-light and the trolley they run back and past the body of Doyle. He said he got off and felt Doyle's hands and they were cold, he felt up his sleeve and they were warm. His face was cold but his neck inside his shirt was warm. There were blood clots on either cheeks and the blood had flowed down over his jaw bones. He saw but one automobile track. It was a dark night and it was hard to make it out clearly.

Joseph Thrasher of Peabody, a passenger, next testified. He said that he was standing out in the front vestibule and that his wife was with him to get the air. He said his wife first called attention to the object by the track thinking it might be a child or a bundle. The motorman stopped the car and it was run back passed the spot where the body lay. The car was later run back to Farnham's turnout where the conductor telephoned to the transfer station in this city to notify the authorities that a man's dead body had been found. Thrasher said he lifted the man's left hand to feel the pulse but there was none neither could he feel the man's heart beat. He said he saw both auto tracks. He said that the head-light was turned upon the ground about the spot where the man was found but that no tracks of persons were to be found.

Mrs. Thrasher testified to the same facts as her husband. The conductor recalled said that they passed the Lawrence car on Farnham's turnout about 10.16 o'clock, it being about a minute late.

State Inspector of Railroads Grafton Upton was present during the proceedings and will make the report to the railroad commissioners. A Boston representative of the Boston & Northern road was also on hand.

The proceedings were closed temporarily at about 11.45 o'clock. Opening at 2 o'clock this afternoon with Judge Dow on the bench inquests will be held into the deaths of Archie W. Balser of Methuen, killed on the Boston & Maine tracks in South Lawrence on February 26th, and Lillian E. Lawrence, a colored girl, killed in the Boston & Maine depot at Andover on May 7th.

Captain Dreyfus Vindicated.

The supreme court of France finally announced its decision July 12 annulling the condemnation of Captain Alfred Dreyfus and entitling him to restoration to his rank in the army as though he had never been accused. Thus the man who twelve years ago was convicted by secret court martial of treasonable dealings with Germany, was sentenced to dismissal from the service and who suffered solitary confinement on Devil's Island for five years stands forth before the world fully exonerated.

Captain Dreyfus himself was not present when the decision was announced, though his brother and others interested were there. He preferred to remain in his secluded apartment, where he has lived in seclusion since the end of his second trial. The court holds that the three new facts have been established and that the accusation against Dreyfus was completely unjustified and without motive. The French parliament on July 13 passed by a large majority a bill restoring Dreyfus to the army, with the rank of major; also restoring, with the rank of brigadier general, Colonel Picquart, who was dismissed for bringing charges against the late Colonel Henry.

Liberals Assail House of Lords. Winston Churchill, undersecretary for the colonies, and David Lloyd George, president of the London board of trade, have made the first speeches for the active campaign for the abolition of the British house of lords. Churchill referred to the latter as "an unsound and irresponsible assembly that has ceased to fulfill its normal functions in the state and has become the partisan weapon of its particular faction."

Admiral Rojestvensky Freed. The court martial at Cronstadt has acquitted Admiral Rojestvensky of the charge of cowardice in connection with his command of the Russian fleet in the disastrous battle of the Sea of Japan. Although he was nominally in command of the torpedo boat Bedovi, to which he had been carried from the flagship, badly wounded, it was found that four officers were really responsible for the surrender, and they were condemned to death, however, with a recommendation to the czar for mercy. The admiral was not in his full senses and therefore not accountable.

Battleships in Mutiny. The Russian battleships Panteleimon and Three Saints joined the garrison of the Batum fortress, which has been in mutiny. The Three Saints hoisted the red flag, and the mutineers were forcibly detaining two other ironclads which had refused to join them. In many parts of St. Petersburg processions of people have moved through the streets, singing revolutionary songs and waving red flags. Street cars are stopped and passengers compelled to salute the red flag. A performance at the People's Palace was broken up, and the audience dispersed, singing the "Marseillaise." Landlords from the provinces are flocking to the capital, appealing for troops to protect their property. Six more newspapers of St. Petersburg have been confiscated. The military court at Tiflis has let off with light punishment the twenty-seven soldiers who refused to fire on the people during the March riot.

The first fruit of legislation in the Russian douma—namely, the bill for the abolition of the death penalty—came to grief in the council of the empire, or the upper house, when a caucus of the Centrists opposed its acceptance.

Russian Admiralty Holdup.

Two porters who were carrying $11,000 from the admiralty at St. Petersburg to pay the dockyard workers were shot and robbed by men who made their escape. It is supposed that the assailants were revolutionists.

Russian Jews in Flight.

Fearing a repetition of the horrors of Kishinev and Bialystok, no less than 40,000 old men, women and children of the Jewish section of Warsaw, Russian Poland, began a flight from that city, while most of the able-bodied male Jews remained behind and armed themselves to guard their property. All this stirred the authorities to extra precautions and assurances.

Hated Admiral Assassinated.

Vice Admiral Choukmin, under whose command the Black sea fleet mutinied last year and who was universally hated by the sailors, especially after the execution of Lieutenant Schmidt, was shot from ambush at Sevastopol July 12 and died next day without recovering consciousness. This was the second attempt on his life. The assassin was reported to be a woman disguised as a sailor of the battleship Otchakov.

Women's Rights in France.

For the first time a party group has been formed in the French chamber for the defense of the rights of women, headed by Henri Cheron.

Sultan Objects to Embassy.

The Turkish government is said to be strongly opposed to the elevation of the American legation to the rank of an embassy. The supposed reason is that it would make more difficult the sultan's evasion of American demands.

Root's Word to Porto Rico.

Upon his arrival at San Juan on the cruiser Charleston, Secretary Root addressed a company of Porto Rican officials and business men at a luncheon given by Auditor General Ward. He said the people of the United States desired only the prosperity of Porto Rico, but avoided references to insular problems, such as citizenship, home rule and trade relations.

EXECUTIVE

Roosevelt Indorses Packers.

The Federation of Grocers, in session at Sheffield, England, received through Ambassador Reid a message from President Roosevelt saying that under the new law he could and would guarantee the fitness of canned meats bearing the government stamp and that if any trouble should arise in regard to them a protest could be made at once, "not merely to the sellers of the goods, but to the United States government itself."

Dry Dock Dewey Safe in Port.

The floating dry dock Dewey, which started Dec. 29 last from Chesapeake bay in tow of two colliers and a third for relay, was reported safe in Philippine waters at the naval station of Olongapo, July 10. Secretary Bonaparte cabled congratulations to Commander Hooley. The Dewey will be stationed permanently at Olongapo, and the largest vessels of the Asiatic fleet can now be docked in American waters. The distance of the voyage is about 12,000 miles.

Packers Haven't Learned Lesson.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who has been in Chicago with a staff of experts reorganizing the meat inspection bureau, declared that another clash between the government and the packers was imminent because of the grudging spirit in which the meat men are meeting the demand for reform. He said that they had not yet learned their lesson.

LEGAL-CRIMINAL

A Summons For John D.

In connection with the suit recently filed at Findlay, O., against the Standard Oil company for violating the state antitrust law a summons for John D. Rockefeller has been issued by Judge Banker of the probate court and turned over to Sheriff Groves.

Arkansas Oil Trust Suit.

The example of Missouri has now been followed by Arkansas in bringing suit against the Waters-Pierce Oil company, alleging conspiracy to control the output and prices of oil and asking $2,000,000 for damages and forfeiture of the right to do business.

Kansas Court Punishes Mayor.

Mayor W. W. Rose of Kansas City, Kan., has been fined $1,000 and ordered to relinquish his office forthwith by order of the supreme court of the state because he reassumed office after being ousted for nonenforcement of the prohibition and antiganbling laws. A motion for a writ of error was filed. Mayor Rose was re-elected at a special election in January.

Alton Guilty of Rebating.

Judge Landis in the federal court of Chicago ruled that the Chicago and Alton Railroad company and its former officials, Falthorn and Wann, had granted illegal rebates to the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Packing company, and the jury found the defendants guilty on all but two counts of the indictments. A motion for a new trial was heard. Later the Chicago and Alton railroad was sentenced to pay a fine of $20,000 on each of two counts and two former officials $10,000 each for granting rebates to the packing house of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger.

Arnold Daily Acquitted.

That it was not a crime to produce Bernard Shaw's play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," is the conclusion reached by a New York court of special sessions in ruling on the arrest of Arnold Daly, the actor who attempted to produce the play in New York last fall, when a second performance was abandoned to avoid police interference and the actor and his stage manager were arrested. The opinion holds that there is nothing in the words of the play which is indecent and that the materials are old and hackneyed, the tools of scores of other playwrights. It says that Shaw has made vice "less attractive than any other dramatist whose plays have never received the censorious attention of the police."

Washington Ice Men Indicted.

The federal grand jury at Washington, D. C., returned indictments against the American Ice company and the Chapin-Sacks Manufacturing company and certain of their officers on the charge of conspiracy to increase the price of ice. Several of the defendants were arrested, and gave bail, but the case will not be tried until the fall term of court.

Defaulter For $200,000.

T. W. Alexander, an Atlanta (Ga.) cotton broker, has disappeared, leaving a note saying that he had speculated in cotton and would never return alive. It was found that he had not only misapplied his firm's money, but had got funds from banks by manipulating warehouse receipts and had borrowed from his friends, altogether aggregating nearly $200,000.

SCIENTIFIC

Remarkable Resuscitation Case.

The life saving service has received a report of the resuscitation of Robert Mooney near Wakefield, R. I., after he had been under water for twenty-three minutes. The man had been thrown into the water on July 4 by the capsizing of a boat. In the operation one gallon of water was expelled from his lungs. An artificial respiration was kept up for one hour and forty-eight minutes before the first signs of returning consciousness appeared. The patient did not recover complete consciousness until the next day.

Bread and Milk For Longevity.

The body of Mrs. Mary Fay, who died in New York recently at the age of 105 years, was found to be in so unusual a state of preservation that the coroner's physician called in other doctors to observe the case. They were amazed to find the body like that of a healthy woman of thirty, and inquiry brought out the fact that the old lady had lived for forty years almost exclusively upon a diet of dried bread and milk, refusing meat or vegetables altogether. The doctors are wondering if this corroborates to some extent the theory of Professor Metchnikoff of Paris that the ferment germs in sour milk are deadly enemies to the putrefaction germs of the stomach and intestines.

Long Distance Weather Predictions.

Professor R. A. Gregory, astronomer of Queen's college, London, says in a recent article that with a more intimate and continuous knowledge of the meteorology of the sun the prediction of weather over a much longer period will be possible and practicable. He holds a theory of weather periodicity based on a solar cycle—the cycle of thirty-five years—shown by solar phenomena, corresponding exactly with a cycle of meteorological changes on the earth. The theory is partly justified by the discovery several years ago by Professor E. Bruckner that there is a periodic variation in climate over the whole earth, the average length of the cycle being thirty-five years. Rainfall, pressure and temperature, movement of glaciers, frequency of severe winters or the height of water in rivers and lakes, all vary year by year; but, neglecting individual years, it is found that the conditions for about seven years are above the average, while for the next seventeen years they are below the average. It is predicted that for the next ten years the pressure will be below the normal and the rainfall above what is usual.

Matter Is Electricity Disembodied.

Dr. Harry C. Jones, professor of physical chemistry at Johns Hopkins university, in a new work on the alleged electrical nature of matter says that the line separating matter from electricity is on the point of disappearing. The corporeal, he says, is nothing but a disembodied electrical charge and contains nothing material. Instead of speaking of the corporeal we should speak of the electron.

EDUCATIONAL

To Make War Impossible.

President Faunce of Brown university, in addressing the sixty-ninth convention of the American Institute of Instruction at New Haven, Conn., said that he would change that old saying, "In time of peace, prepare for war," to "In time of peace, prepare to make war impossible."

Professor Anderson of the Yale gymnasium talked on the subject of Sunday games and expressed the opinion that Sunday afternoon was harmful to the President Faunce, young, especially in the country. He said they might better be engaged in athletic sports under proper supervision than lounging around corners learning bad habits.

Simplified Spelling For New York.

The New York public school authorities have adopted the simplified form of spelling 300 words in common use, as recommended by the Simplified Spelling Book. It will mean a great boom for the publishers of text books, as those now in use by half a million children will have to be discarded and new ones substituted.

A PATHETIC LIFE ROMANCE.

The life-story of Mrs. Letitia Tyler Semple reads like a tragic romance, and attention has been called to it lately by her 86th anniversary. From a happy Virginia bride at 19, mistress of the White House at 21, to the affliction of blindness and poverty in old age and finally to become an inmate of the Louise Home in Washington, is a story pathetic as it is interesting.

Mrs. Semple was a beautiful girl when she was married in 1839. When William Henry Harrison died and Vice President Tyler moved into the White House a new regime was inaugurated. President Tyler was an aristocratic Virginian, hospitable and loving society.

After the death of her mother Mrs. Semple assumed the duties of mistress of the White House, which she discharged with grace and tact until her father's second marriage a few months before his term of office expired.

Mr. Semple was a rich man when he married Letitia Tyler. When the civil war broke out he was in the navy. He at once resigned and went into the Confederate navy. At the close of the war he found himself with land, money and health all gone. Mrs. Semple, having no children, went to Baltimore, where she opened a young ladies' school.

Mrs. Semple was successful in her school venture and conducted it for many years. Mr. Semple died in his seventieth year. Some years afterward Mrs. Semple realized she was too feeble to longer properly conduct her large institution. She disposed of it and went to Washington according to a promise made to her old friend, Mr. Corcoran, long since dead and gone, that should she ever be further reduced in circumstances she would become a resident of the beautiful home in Washington dedicated to the memory of his daughter.

Mrs. Semple is the last surviving member of her father's family, all of her brothers and sisters having been dead many years. She has, however, many nieces and nephews. Her room is filled with mementos of her Southern home and her exile in the White House. Her most beloved possessions are the old portraits of her mother and her three sisters and herself, all painted in their youth and all quaint and beautiful.

Her last visit to the White House was during the administration of President Pierce, whose family were intimate friends. Since that time, although invitations have come to her for every function given there and are still coming, she has paid no attention to them.

HOW TO BE VERY, VERY POPULAR

(O. S. Marden in "Success Magazine.")
Never hesitate to talk about yourself and your affairs. This will interest everybody.

Do not fail to throw cold water on other people's plans and to discourage their ambition. Nobody is sensitive about this.

Be sure to dwell upon the defects and failings of others, and call everybody's attention to them. Everybody likes gossip.

Never try to stop gossip, no matter if it does drive an innocent person insane or to suicide. There is no reason why you should be deprived of a little innocent pastime just because of other's sensitiveness. Pass the gossip along. Add to its splendor.

Always be on the watch for slights and insults. Remember, most people are your social superiors and are trying to cut you.

There is nothing which will endure one to others like selfishness. Everybody admires it.

Do not bother about trying to be agreeable at breakfast table. Just hide yourself behind your paper, find fault with the food, and snap at the servants.

Auto 14980.

It came down Main street, Thursday evening at 6:18 o'clock, and it was fairly flying. There were two occupants in auto 14980, and it stopped in the Square a few minutes before returning toward the hill. It was a most interesting vehicle, was auto 14980. The number will long linger in the minds of those who saw it at 6:18 o'clock Thursday evening, because it was so full of suggestions to the mind at all open to suggestions. There was the 1 to represent the fact that it was No. 1 in the whole list of law breakers who have thus far raced the streets of Andover. Then there was a 4 to indicate the number of witnesses who are sorely tempted to appear in court and prosecute the reckless driver of auto 14980. Then came a 9, a figure always to be remembered by all American citizens at this time of year, when just an even nine is the complete team. Last of all came the mystic figures of 80, representing the miles per hour that auto 14980 was travelling when it ran down Main street at 6:18 last evening.

Auto 14980 should have a slight addition to its number, and perhaps the figures 30 might serve for a starter to make its identifying marks more suggestive. Assuming that they were added so that the number should be "14980-30", we would then have the complete story of law breaker No. 1 passing four witnesses at twice nine minutes after six on Thursday evening, July 19, at the rate of 80 miles an hour; for which the driver got 30 days of a slow time from next morning's court.

We cannot be accused of opposing automobiles. We believe they are an important part of the life of the twentieth century. They can be run with safety at a very rapid speed in many streets, but Main street in Andover is not one of the streets where high speed should be allowed, and it is high time for emphatic action to be taken that will stop the long established practice of automobile scorching between Andover hill and the Square.

A New R. R. Station.

The call for a special town meeting, to change the bounds of School street and Essex street where they touch the railroad property, is a positive assurance that Andover is at last to have a new railroad station. This is a welcome piece of news. It means an improvement to the town, that is of very great importance, for it means a new first impression upon the many visitors who annually come here, that will color their entire viewpoint of Andover.

The plans provide for a station built of light brick and brown stone with long covered platforms graded to a curbing. The desired change in the street is so that there may be more room provided for carriages, and a better approach generally to the station. There will be some surprise that the new station is to be built upon the site of the present structure, but it is understood that very exhaustive surveys have convinced the officials that no other location will so satisfactorily provide the conveniences for serving an Andover public. It has been a long time coming, but the present plans would indicate a job that will not only provide improved facilities for the railroad itself, but a great improvement to the town. The entire work involves an expense of nearly $50,000, and it is the plan of the railroad officials to begin at an early day.

Editorial Cinders.

One of the ridiculous half hourly performances that is carried on in Andover, is that by which patrons arriving in Andover on the Reading cars are transferred to the Haverhill cars. It runs something thiswise: In front of the town house the conductor calls "Andover Square, change for North Andover and Haverhill"; the bell is rung and the car stops in front of Hotel Andover. A troop of travellers pile out of the car, and laden with bags and bundles drag themselves a hundred yards down the street to where a Haverhill car stands. After they have left, the car starts along and running that hundred yards stops within about fifty feet of the Haverhill car and surveys its work of transferring with an approving eye. The men in charge of the car are not to be blamed, as it is understood they are obeying orders, but the men who give the orders ought to be given the job of carrying all the baggage the extra distance without pay for a week, to see if there could not be instilled in them some appreciation of the common sense that would seem to be necessary in the running of a street railway.

By the choice of Mr. Burton S. Flagg as treasurer of Abbot Academy, that institution secures the services of a first class business man, and the interest and co-operation of an excellent citizen. Mr. Flagg is to be congratulated upon the confidence shown in him by the men who comprise the efficient board of trustees at Abbot, and the school is to be congratulated that Mr. Flagg is willing to add the burdens of his new office to the work he is already doing in so successful a manner.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING

The Following Warrant Has Been Posted in Andover.

In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts you are hereby directed to notify and warn the inhabitants of the town of Andover qualified to vote in town affairs, to meet and assemble at the Town Hall, in said Andover, on Wednesday, August first, 1906, at 7:30 o'clock, P. M., to act on the following articles:

Article 1st. To choose a moderator to preside at said meeting.

Article 2nd. To see if the Town will accept the gift of Twenty-five thousand Dollars ($25,000) made by the will of Mrs. Helen G. Coburn to form a permanent endowment fund for Memorial Hall.

Article 3rd. To see if the town will discontinue a portion of School Street, according to a plan submitted by the Boston & Maine Railroad for a new station and for improving the approaches to the same.

Article 4th. To see if the town will vote to allow a certain lot of land on Corbett Street to be used as a Cemetery for the purpose of burial.

Article 5th. To transact any other business that may legally come before said meeting.

New Through Cars.

Street cars of the convertible type, thoroughly up-to-date in equipment and construction are shortly to replace those now in service upon the Boston & North-ern through line from Lawrence to Boston. The cars are now being fitted with motors and trucks at the North Reading car barn.

The cars may be used either summer or winter. They stand much higher than the present type, having two steps instead of one. The doors open and close by compressed air. Air is also employed to raise the lower step when the car is in motion, making it impossible for persons to board the car when in motion.

The cars have a seating capacity of six more persons than the largest box cars now in use. There are no vestibules, every inch of room being utilized. The motorman may pull a door about himself but this does not interfere with persons leaving by either door.

The cars are wired so that they may be run en train, an arrangement which may possibly be introduced upon the through lines are long. The cars are built by the J. G. Brill Company of Philadelphia, Penn.

Ladies' Club Entertained.

Miss Charlotte Hill royally entertained the members of the Ladies' club of the Andover Grange and their gentlemen friends at her home in Frye Village last Friday night. The entertainment took the form of a lawn party, the grounds being beautifully arranged for the occasion with many Chinese lanterns. Refreshments were served.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Milo H. Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gould, Mr. and Mrs. James Feeney, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Averill, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Frye, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Moor, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Playdon, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster, Mrs. Edward Burr, Mrs. John Morrison, Mrs. James Gillen, Mrs. Tenny, Misses Carolyn Burr, Laura Burr, Winnifred Burr, Madeline Hewes, Ethel Clark, C. M. Hill, Elmer Philbrick, Blanchard Frye, Philip Morrison, Warren and James Feeney.

Valuable Statuary for Memorial Hall.

Two pieces of onyx statuary have recently been presented to the trustees of the Memorial Hall library by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Smith, which have been placed in position in the memorial room on the second floor. They were left to Mr. and Mrs. Smith through the will of the late Mrs. George W. Coburn.

The pieces are mates and each stands about nine feet high, the bottom forming a base on which rests a vase beautifully decorated with flowers and cupid's heads. They are made of onyx and are said to be very valuable. They have been placed on either side of the memorial tablet and make a fine addition to the collection of valuable relics now in the building.

Civil Service Examinations.

The Massachusetts Civil Service Commissioners will hold examinations for Inspectors of steam boilers on July 30 and 31 and for Detective and Fire Inspection forces on Friday, August 3.

In the former class applicants must not be less than 22 nor over 45 years of age and in the latter not less than 25 nor over 40 years of age.

Applicants for either of the above-named positions must have resided in the Commonwealth at least one year and must measure not less than five feet seven inches in bare feet and weigh not less than one hundred and thirty-five pounds without clothing. In each class an applicant will be required to pass a medical examination. Applicants desiring to take either of these examinations should secure an application blank at once from the office of the Civil Service Commissioners, Room 152, State House, or from the local secretaries, fill it out and return it to the office of the Commissioners on or before July 28, 1906.

Elected to Important Office

Burton S. Flagg was recently elected treasurer of Abbot Academy, at a meeting of the Board of Trustees, to take the place of Samuel L. Fuller, who has gone to New York on business. Mr. Flagg was also elected a member of the Board of Trustees. His duties as treasurer will start at the beginning of the fiscal year, September first.

Mr. Flagg is at present secretary of the Merrimack Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

Boston & Maine to build a New Station.

That a new Boston & Maine station is assured is welcome news to the people of Andover who have waited long and expectantly for a more beautiful and up-to-date edifice to take the place of the old and out-grown one now used. For some time it has been noised about that a new station was to be built here but as time wore on those interested wondered if it could be really so as there seemed to be nothing to confirm the rumor.

Early this week plans were submitted to the Selectmen for approval which call for some needed and important alterations in the surroundings before the station can be built. The plans call for a change in the location of the part of School street between Essex street and Railroad street, taking away a few feet of "The Boulders" and making the street run parallel with Ridge street instead of in a semi-circle as at present. This will give much more room for the station which is planned to be about three times as large as the present one. There will be no train shed as at present and all passengers whether northward or southward bound will board the trains on the east side. A covered platform 500 feet long will extend from the waiting room southward, while the platform northward will be the same length as at present. A driveway will extend the full length of the southern platform and this will be used for carriages.

A special town meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, August first, for the purpose of taking action in regard to the change of location of School street as called for by the plans submitted.

AN ABLE CHAUFFEUR.

A Boston Paper of Sunday, July 15, contains the following compliment to Harold W. Whipple, son of Harlan W. Whipple of this town.

"Nowhere in this country is there to be found a more capable or younger motor operator than Harold W. Whipple, the 14-year-old son of Harlan W. Whipple, vice-president of the Bay State Automobile association. There are of course, many younger operators than Whipple, but it is a question if they can drive as high-powered a car with the same capability as does the Andover boy.

"Early in the season his father presented him with a 45-horse power Raiser. Since then he has rolled up over 5,000 miles on the car. One of the longest and best feats accomplished by Harold Whipple was done in order to do his share toward entertaining the orphans in their recent run to this city. He drove from his home in Andover to Amesbury and there met the son of General Bailey of that city, a lad about his own age. Unaccompanied by any chauffeur the pair made the trip to Boston arriving here in season to be among the first to report for duty at the Massachusetts Automobile club. He spent the day in taking the children out, and then made the run back home, covering something like 135 miles in the day. Harold disdains the assistance of a chauffeur and that, too, despite the fact that he cannot crank his own car. He overcomes the difficulty, he says, by never stopping the engine except at the top of the grade, and he starts the engine by throwing in the clutch while coasting.

"On July 1, Harold drove his car from Andover to Wareham, on the cape, and then for the first time he wished he had a chauffeur. He punctured a tire and was forced to wait until the arrival of his pater and the chauffeur."

Obituary.

MRS. MARY CAFFEY

Mrs. Mary Caffrey, an old resident of the town, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nathan Shattuck, in Whittier Court on Monday morning, half past five. She had been suffering from the effects of a shock which occurred about two years ago and although she had not been confined to her bed during this time she was unable to perform any work.

Mrs. Caffrey was born in Ireland 72 years ago, and came to Andover about 20 years ago. She was well known in town and she leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her demise. Mrs. Shattuck is the only surviving daughter.

WONDERLAND IS FIRST.

First in the Magnitude and Multiplicity of its Attractions and first in Popularity and Patronage.

The popularity of Wonderland, that million-dollar myotic city and electrical realm at Revere Beach, is no longer problematical. It is positively and permanently assured, and its endless chain of attractions are the wonder and admiration of all. That masterful, realistic spectacle, Fighting the Flames, the weird and mysterious Trip to Hell Gate, the thrilling and sensational Shoot the Chutes, the marvelous Wild West and Indian Congress, the delightful and exhilarating ride on the Thompson Seaside Railway, the scientific and philanthropic infant incubators, the marvelously educated horse, Princess Trixie, are some of the attractions.

The sensation of the week at Wonderland is the mysterious Mr. Raffles, whose exploits in the concealment of his identity have made him famous from one end of the country to the other. By a contract entered into with the Wonderland Company, he guaranteed to appear there every evening this week up to and including Friday, circulating freely on the Board Walk and attending the various shows. He made his first appearance last Monday, after guaranteeing to give $100 to anyone identifying him.

An innovation, or rather a new departure at Wonderland, which shows exclusively the magnitude of some of its attractions and the great aggregation of people employed, are the parades at 2 and 7 o'clock every afternoon and evening of all the employees, all the shows and all the bands.

Princess Irene, "the Lady of Lions," is a frail young woman who daily trifles with death. She says she expects some day that the lions she exhibits in Ferrari's wild animal show at Wonderland will leap upon her and kill her.

"It may be to-day; it may be tomorrow, or it may never be," she said. "But I never go into the cage with my pet, without the realization that my time may be nigh. Why don't I stop work? Oh, I cannot. Oftentimes I have thought I would give it up and try something else, but there is something which draws me back to the arena—back to peril, if you will have it so. It is a terribly strong fascination to me. I love the life—risk and all."

"Leopards are the most intelligent and also the most treacherous of the big cats. One may purr in your lap and rub its nose lovingly against your cheek, only to leap at your throat the moment your back is turned. It is seldom safe to turn your back upon a wild animal, although I often do it. But I have a premonition always when an animal has got to the frame of mind when he is going to try to down me. Then I never quit until I have downed him."

At Glen Forest

For the coming week at Glen Forest the management has secured another vaudeville that is fully as good as the one presented at this popular and cool open air theatre a few weeks ago.

The show includes one funny farce in one funny act, given for the first time by the famous team of Holcomb Curtis and Co. The act is entitled "Fun in a Schoolroom" and is said to be a regular side splitter. There are several good comedy acts, with which is combined a high degree of skill. Noticeable among these are the acts of The Aherns, comedy cyclists, the LaNele Brothers in an act called "Fun on a Revolving Ladder" and the weird and mysterious Aden-Upton, the only real thing on the American stage at the present time.

For music and fun, the act of the Harper, Desmond and Hilliard Company, real comers, is a surprise.

Free seats as usual for the ladies and children, Monday afternoon.

Another grand gala day for the children will be given sometime during the week, the date and particulars to be announced later.

Not content with the old-time fireworks display at night that seemed the acme of magnificence to our grandparents, the great modern fireworks houses after years of experiments have perfected displays of fireworks to be sent off in broad daylight, that are just as beautiful and far more novel to the experienced twentieth century youngster, than the night displays.

The Boston and Northern St. Ry. Co. is certainly to be congratulated upon securing so many extra attractions for the popular grove this year, especially after that of last week.

CRICKET

Good cricketing weather was the order of the day when East Boston took the first lease of the bat on the local cricket grounds. Wade led off the attack for Lawrence. Mitchell, off Walker's fourth ball was prettily caught by McIntyre. Devin played a soft one back to Woodcock which he accepted, East Boston all out for 19. Wright being the only batter to do anything for 8. Lawrence fielding being really good. Walker bowled very well taking 6 crickets at the cost of 1 runs. Lawrence tried a new way to get a victory by reversing the team which almost proved disastrous for them. 6 wickets going down for 11 runs did not look too well until Bruce with a huge hit for 6 won the match, but a few balls later got clean bowled for 15.

POLITICAL

Phelps Stokes a Socialist.

The wealthy New York settlement worker, J. G. Phelps Stokes, who last year was the Hearst candidate for president of the board of aldermen and who last March held a house party of liberals at his family home in Norton, Conn., has now come out square-

J. G. Phelps Stokes.

ly for socialism. In giving notice to the Hearst people he says he has long been a believer in the philosophy of socialism, but had refrained from active co-operation with the party owing to the bitterness manifested by many socialists toward all who support the capitalist system and also to what seemed to him the gross materialism of many socialists. He failed to see that the bitterness and ill will were not chargeable to the socialist philosophy, but to the monopoly extortion and oppression of the capitalist beneficiaries.
Although he now perceives the divergence of capitalist and working classes, he says he still regards capital as necessary at present to the public welfare, but that its complete control by the people collectively is essential. He will strive to promote a recognition of the fact that "the so called capitalist system is indefensible ethically and disastrous industrially through the inescapable wage slavery to which it leads and that it must be supplanted by a more righteous system of cooperation and individual aid."

Taft's Message to the South.

What is regarded as the keynote speech of the Republican congressional campaign was delivered by Secretary of War Taft at Greenboro, N. C., July 9, on the eve of the Republican state convention. After praising the work of the recent session of congress Mr.
Taft, discussing the "solid south," pointed out that, while this solidarity had assured to the Democrats a certain number of congressmen and electoral votes, it had furnished its own antidote by restraining many northern voters from leaving the Republican party. He said the question to which the south should address itself was how much longer the specter of things past "is to hold them to a political allegiance that does them no good in national politics and deprives their communities of the benefit of two parties in local politics." By treating negro disfranchisement as an accomplished fact he made it clear that the administration no longer contemplates interference and that the bog of negro domination no longer exists. He expressly stated that laws which "exclude from the ballot impartially both the whites and blacks, when ignorant and irresponsible, cannot be criticized."

Secretary Taft at once returned to Washington and started for Put-tuck, O., where he addressed the State Bar association on the Panama canal project and justifying the lock plan.
Platt and Odell Make Up.
The fact has leaked out that Senator Platt and Chairman Odell of New York had formed an offensive and defensive alliance, having met at Highland Mills. It is said that their purpose is to checkmate the administration, national and state, and retain control of the Republican machinery.
The same report says that Platt is dissatisfied with the attention paid to his recommendations by President Roosevelt. At the same time Messrs. Odell and Quigg have joined hands to defeat Chairman Parsons of the New York county committee.

A close friend of President Roosevelt announced that the president had given positive assurance that he would not interfere in the New York party fight this year.

Pennsylvania Fusion Complete.

The Independent Lincoln Republicans of Pennsylvania reassembled and revised their state ticket by replacing their nominees for lieutenant governor and auditor general with those made by the Democratic convention. At the head of the Lincoln Democratic ticket stands that veteran leader of Independent Republicans, Lewis Emery, Jr.
Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia sent word that he would support the ticket and stump the state for Emery and fusion.

H. Clay Evans For Governor.

The Tennessee Republican convention at Nashville nominated former Commissioner of Pensions Evans for governor. This meant the defeat of the faction supporting Congressman Brownlow.

Notable Socialist Nominations.

Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle," has consented to accept the nomination of the Socialists of Mercer county, N. J., for congress.

W. D. Heywood, president of the Western Federation of Miners, although in an Idaho prison charged with the assassination of former Governor Steunenberg, has been nominated for governor by the Socialists of Colorado. A resolution demands his release, so that he may take part in the campaign.

Hearst Not a Candidate.

In a San Francisco interview several days after Bryan's London talk W. R.
Hearst stated positively that he is not a candidate for the Democratic nomination of 1908. He said he appreciated Mr. Bryan's compliment in mentioning him, but if he made the list he would substitute Stevenson for Bailey.

"Bryan and Bailey" would tickle the ear, but would sound too much like Barum and Bailey." "Folk and Balley" would not mix very well, being a ticket of good, pure water and Standard Oil. Mr. Hearst says he is satisfied to use his publications "to drive out of office the white slaves of the trusts and to promote the fortunes of the honest servants of the people." He is eager to see the line drawn irrespective of party "between those that believe in special privileges and those that believe in popular rights between the producing classes and the plundering corporations."

Bryan Willing to Lead.

Ex-Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas has made public a letter received by him from W. J. Bryan which adds fuel to the flames of the Nebraskan's popularity. Mr. Bryan says that he will do nothing to secure another nomination and that he enjoys the freedom of private life, but that there are certain reforms which he would like to see accomplished. For this purpose he would become the party candidate again if the advocates of reform are in control of the party. He ends by saying that the country needs "to have Jeffersonian Democracy applied to all the departments of the government."

Governor Folk of Missouri called forth a storm of applause when in his address at the Fox River Chautauqua at Appleton, Wis., he said, "There is only one man under present conditions who should receive the Democratic nomination for president, if he will accept, and that one man is William Jennings Bryan." Governor Folk also paid a high tribute to Senator La Follette, saying that he was neither a Republican nor a Democrat, but belonged to the people of the United States.

Mayor Johnson of Cleveland in accepting the invitation of the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league to preside at the New York reception to Bryan refers to the latter as "the trusted leader of democratic Democrats" and insists that the presidency was taken from him by a huge corruption fund distributed by beneficiaries of privilege.

Bryan Says He's Conservative.

In a later interview Bryan definitely admitted that the silver issue was dead. He noticed that American newspapers were referring to him as "a conservative," and he said that in one sense he had always been a conservative. The Democratic policies were conservative because they embodied
"old principles applied to new conditions." There was nothing new in principle in either of the platforms on which he stood. They aimed to defend property by drawing a line between honest accumulation and predatory wealth. If, however, they thought he had modified his opposition to corporate aggrandizement they would be surprised, for he was more radical than in 1896. In fact, the only question in which there had been any apparent change was the silver question, and that had been "not a change in the advocates of bimetalism, but in conditions"—namely, the increased production of gold. He thought the volume of money in circulation was almost 50 per cent greater than in 1896, and the benefits had vindicated the quantitative theory of money. He believed that the restoration of silver would bring still further prosperity. As to the next campaign, he expected a new alignment and suggested the Biblical plan of admitting the eleventh comer to a place in the vineyard.

LABOR

Better Wages For 45,000.

An advance of 5 per cent in wages in cotton-mills in thirty or more cities, towns and villages of southern Massachusetts and Rhode Island went into effect July 9, benefiting 45,000 operatives. Since the beginning of the upward movement early in the year 105,- 000 textile workers have had their pay advanced from 5 to 14 per cent. The Fall River Iron works, which were already paying the highest wages in that city, has again raised wages, so that they are still the best paid works in that section.

Union Cemetery For Chicago.

Plans are being made in Chicago to establish a union cemetery to operate in conjunction with the Union Burial association, an institution which guarantees to bury members of labor unions and their families in union made coffins bearing the label of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' association, with a "decent funeral, conducted by the members of the Cab and Carriage Drivers' union, and all for $50 for adults and $35 for children."

Miners Win Wage Increase.

A settlement of the miners' strike in the bituminous field of central Pennsylvania was made in a conference between the officers of the union and the operators at Philadelphia, July 11, through which 30,000 miners gain an increase of 5.55 per cent and application of the check-off system to miners, but not to laborers. This system is the withholding of an amount equal to the union dues, to be turned over to the union.

COMMERCIAL

Experts Defend Packers.

The committee of experts of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Commercial association which for two weeks investigated conditions at the stockyards reported that the food products are wholesome and that the inspection is more rigid than that employed in the abattoirs of Germany. It recommends that the government establish training schools for meat inspectors. The committee did not mention the names of any of the establishments visited. The report says that much of the criticism was directed at the older buildings and that these are rapidly being replaced by modern ones. It adds that part of the criticism is based "upon an aesthetic taste and popular demand that food products be produced in places conforming to certain vague ideals."

Steage Rate War Begun.

The North German Lloyd Steamship company has met last week's cut of the Hamburg-American line by reducing the steage rate from Bremen to New York $2.50. This indicates the way in which our immigration business is boomed in Europe.

Railroaders Must Sell Stock.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company through President Cassatt has ordered all officers and employees to divest themselves of any interest, direct or indirect, in stocks of any coal company or any concern owning or operating mines on the Pennsylvania system or in any other business where the holding of such interest might conflict with their duty to the public.

Policy Holders' Committee Organized.

The recently formed policy holders' international committee of the Mutual and New York Life met at New York and elected former Secretary of State Olney as permanent chairman and Governor Hanly of Indiana vice chairman. Alton B. Parker was named senior member of the executive committee and Messrs. Wanamaker, Niedringhaus and Newhouse as the finance committee. Samuel Untermyer was elected general counsel. Already this committee is said to represent 200,000 policy holders, and they hope to have 700,000 enrolled before the voting begins, Oct. 18. An address was issued to the 1,200,000 policyholders in which the farcical elec-

Richard Olney.

tions of the past are described and the changes provided under the new law.
It states that neither the committee nor general counsel will accept compensation, and nominations will be made for the thirty-six Mutual directors and the twenty-four New York Life directors from the names submitted by the policy holders. The new management will be expected to investigate the wasting of moneys and to prosecute for their recovery. It costs over $50,000 to put a circular into the hands of every policy holder, and this must be borne by contributions. A permanent organization is contemplated to prevent future abuses.
The polls will close Dec. 18.

Midvale Outbids Armor Trust.

When the bids were opened at the navy department for furnishing 7,328 tons of armor for the battleships South Carolina and Michigan it was found that the Midvale Steel company had underbid the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies, notwithstanding that both the members of the trust had reduced their last year's figures. The Midvale bid was based on $345 a ton for the bulk of the armor, aggregating $2,- 555,470, as compared with Carnegie's $370 a ton, aggregating $2,733,560, and with Bethlehem's $381 a ton, aggregating $2,813,568. The Midvale people promised deliveries at the rate of 600 tons a month, and no claim will be made for royalties. They use an American process, whereas the trust still employs the German process. A delegation of the representatives of the trust, including Charles M. Schwab, promptly filed a protest against awarding the entire contract to the lowest bidder, declaring that if the trust didn't get part of the contract it would have to shut down its armor plants, throwing thousands of men out of work.
Secretary Bonaparte heeded Schwab's protest and took half the contract from the Midvale company, dividing it between the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies at $345 a ton, the Midvale bid.

MISCELLANEOUS

Start of Glidden Auto Tour.

At Buffalo, July 12, sixty automobiles started on the 1,100 mile tour of the American Automobile association through northwestern New York, Quebec and the New England states to the White mountains to compete for the cup donated by Charles J. Glidden of Boston. This will go to the man who can show the best all around touring results on a schedule which does not permit of racing or fast driving. All must run a fixed distance each day and outside of this period must not touch their cars. The penalty for getting ahead of schedule is twice as severe as the one for getting behind.
Thirty-five manufacturers are represented, of whom thirty-two are Americans.

No Insanity Plea For Thaw.

Harry K. Thaw, the young Pittsburger awaiting trial at New York for the murder of Stanford White, gave out a statement contradicting the press reports that his lawyers had decided to make the plea of insanity. Nevertheless the defense has retained all of the leading alienists, so that the state may not have a well known expert to call.

Accidents.

Five people were killed and a score injured in a collision between two trolley trains between Lockport and Tonawanda.

A cloudburst and landslide destroyed a Mexican mining camp, causing ten deaths and injuries to many more.
Train wreckers spiked a siding at the Jackson mine east of Princeton, Ind., causing the derailment of a Southern railroad express, which resulted in the

What is a Backache?

IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO WOMEN

Diseases of Woman's Organism Cured and Consequent Pain Stopped by Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It seems as though my back would break." Women utter these words over and over again, but continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, "bearing-down" pains, nervousness and no ambition for any task.

Miss Maude Morris

They do not realize that the back is the mainspring of woman's organism, and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the female organs or kidneys, and that the aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been for many years the one and only effective remedy in such cases. It speedily cures female and kidney disorders and restores the female organs to a healthy condition.

"I have suffered with female troubles for over two years, suffering intense pain each month, my back ached until it seemed as though it would break, and I felt so weak all over that I did not find strength to attend to my work but had to stay in bed a large part of the first two or three days every month.
I would have sleepless nights, bad dreams and severe headaches. All this undermined my health."

"We consulted an old family physician, who advised that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it regularly and soon found that I could sleep and eat better than I had done for months. Within two months I became regular and no longer suffer from backache or pain."—Miss Maude Morris, Sec. Ladies' Aid and Mission Society,

STREET DEPARTMENT OUTING.

The employees of the town street department held a very enjoyable outing at Harris pond Saturday. There were 32 present, including, as guests, George G. Frederick, Dr. J. R. Berwick and Chief Engineer Thomas Dow of the fire department. The men arrived at the camp at 9 o'clock. A fish dinner prepared by Andrew Lawton was served at one o'clock and after the chowder had been enjoyed, ice cream and other refreshments were served and cigars passed around.

The evening had after dinner, a feature being the tree climbing contest, in which Andrew Lawton won the prize.
A tug of war was held between the men on the street work and those employed at the ledge, the former crowd winning.

Whist was played during a part of the afternoon. The gathering broke up about 7 o'clock after a most enjoyable day. Mr. O'Malley, one of the party, captured two fine fish.

The committee in charge included Andrew Lawton, John O'Malley and Robert Gaffney.

LAWRENCE

DENIED IDENTITY AND DISCLAIM- ED SISTERS.

An eight year old boy, denying his identity and disclaiming relationship with his two sisters was a scene witnessed in the police station just after court closed Monday morning. The story is most unreal, but nevertheless is strictly true and runs thus:

On Sunday morning about 8 o'clock a milkman named Peter Roche brought an eight year old boy into the police station and told Assistant Marshal Logan that he found the lad bunking out in an alleyway between Green and Cedar street.

Upon interrogation by Mr. Logan the boy said his name was John Toland, that his father and mother were dead, and that he had no home.

The police instituted a search, but being Sunday the papers were not at the disposal of the police and the lad ran about the station and regaled himself upon candy furnished by sympathizers. This morning Rev. Fr. O'Reilly and Rev. Clerk Carter were discussing what was best to be done, when a telephone message was received from Andrew P. Hickey, a local undertaker, who described his little boy whom he said had been missing since five o'clock Sunday morning. He described the lad's appearance and sent the latter's two sisters to the station house to accompany him home.

When they came towards him, he asked them what they wanted and said he didn't know them. "Why Clarence Hickey, what do you mean," said one of the girls, but still the boy denied that he knew them. He was told that if he didn't go home he would be locked up, and he finally reluctantly accompanied his sisters to his home.

BAD WRECK NARROWLY AVERT- ED IN SO. LAWRENCE.

While running practically at its full speed, the local passenger train from Haverhill to Boston, due at the South Lawrence station about 9:30 struck an open switch in the "new yard" of the Boston & Maine railroad near South Union street Sunday night and crashed into a siding of empty coal cars.

The engine was toppled over on its side and the rear coal car was demolished.

The coach next to the engine was an empty one, and locked. This received the full impact of the collision and was completely crushed, while the three coaches following it escaped injury.

Not a passenger was hurt to any extent although all were considerably shaken up by the impact, and Fred Thompson, the engineer, and Fireman Foster, both of Boston, who were in the cab as the engine rolled over escaped with superficial scratches. Engineer Foster sprained his right ankle.
Trainmen viewing the wreck were unable to explain how more serious consequences had not resulted.

The scene of the collision is in a straightaway stretch which extends from a point a short distance west of the North Andover station to the curve near the junction of the Boston &
Lowell tracks with those of the B. & M. Engineers do not slacken their speed much until nearing the latter point.

The train, which was in charge of Conductor Stuart of Boston, came along at a good clip. It consisted of a baggage and four passenger cars.

The crash occurred about 100 feet west of the highway bridge.

Word was sent to police headquarters and the ambulance and patrol wagon responded, as did several doctors to whom word was also sent.

An examination showed that the only damage to the passenger train was that sustained by the engine and the empty car, while only one of the coal cars was broken up. The latter were part of a freight train which was being made up in the yard, and it is thought that one of the train hands had neglected to close the switch of the side track. Another engine was secured and the passenger train sent forward.

The Bar Harbor express was flagged and delayed about half an hour by the wreck.

INQUESTS HELD BEFORE JUSTICE DOW.

Inquiries were held before Associate Justice Dow Monday afternoon into the deaths of Archie M. Balser on Feb. 26, and Lillian E. Lawrence, the Balser youth was struck by a train
Feb. 26, near the Pingree Box factory.
He died almost instantly. Miss Lawrence was struck by a special passenger train carrying railroad officials from Boston to Salem, N. H., at the railroad station in Andover April 1.
She died shortly after.

ARCHIE M. BALSER.

In the Archie M. Balser inquest Dr.
George W. Dow was the first witness.
He testified: "I performed an autopsy on the body of Archie M. Balser on Feb. 26, at the undertaking parlors of Conlin and Ryan. The body, head and face were covered with bruises. There was a hole in the center of a bruise in the small of the back. I think the victim received a blow in the back that caused his death. He was about 19 years of age."

Leonard Marshall, engineer on the train said: "The deceased and three other men were on the railroad tracks south of Andover street. The men seemed intent on getting aboard a freight car. I whistled and two of the men jumped to one side of the track and the other two jumped to the other side. One of them changed his mind and jumped back in front of my engine. He was struck and knocked high in the air and came down on a pile of rocks, landing on his head. The train was going at express speed. My fireman rang the bell. The three com-pans of the victim ran into the woods and disappeared."

The fireman, Charles T. Neron of Amesbury, corroborated the engineer.
Jeremiah Cullinane, a section man, testified to seeing the four men on the tracks shortly before the accident, also to seeing the express train coming along and to jumping into a ditch.
He said he was so excited that he could not tell whether the engineer whistled or not. He said that he feared the other four men would all be killed.

Engineer A. Jennings testified: "I was running a special passenger train from Boston to Salem, N. H., that day.
It was not to stop at Andover. We did stop when the accident occurred. The time was about 12:03 o'clock noon. The accident happened at the train shed at the Andover station. When I saw the girl first, she was between the tracks.
I had blown my whistle 1000 feet away at the whistling post. As soon as I saw her I shut off my steam, put on the brake and blew the whistle one blast. The second time I tried to blow the whistle without any car attachment was an engine without any car attachment. We were going by. We were coming around the curve and we could not see her before we did. I did not see her struck."

Fireman G. Copeland of Somerville, testified: "I was fireman on the train that struck the girl. I saw her leave the platform and walk across the tracks toward my train. I rang the bell but she did not seem to hear or notice me. We did all we could to slow up and to warn her but she did not realize her danger."

Gate tender John J. Stewart testified to seeing the girl walk across the tracks and directly in front of the oncoming train. He said he did not hear the engine whistle as there was a single locomotive passing by him at the time. He said he knew the girl by sight, but did not know whether she was deaf or not.

Charles Clarke testified to seeing the girl passing diagonally across the tracks towards the track on which the passenger train was approaching. He said she seemed to be looking straight ahead as she walked the track in front of the train. He said he saw her struck and hurled to one side.

William Mahoney said he was some distance from the scene of the accident but he saw the girl struck. He said she walked directly across the tracks in front of the train.

That closed the taking of testimony in that inquiry and Judge Dow took the matter under consideration.

NATIONAL CIGAR STANDS

The Economy of a Straight Line

The National Cigar Stands Company is an easy, uninterrupted, straight-line channel between tobacco planter and cigar smoker. The tobacco makes only one stop on the way—at the factory where it is turned into cigars. It pays only one small fare for the whole trip.

It used to go in a roundabout way, from planter to leaf-broker, from broker to cigar-maker, from cigar-maker to cigar-jobber, from cigar-jobber to retailer, from retailer to you. It paid a fare—that is, another profit—at every stage.

The National Cigar Stands' plan saves four stages and four fares. That is why the cigars sold by them give

CRITICISM DIRECTED TOWARD THE COUNTY BOARD.

SALEM, July 17.—Criticism is again directed at the County Commissioners, and this time it is coal contracts that trouble them. The Commissioners were criticised upon the same matter last year, and quite a wrangle resulted between the coal men and the public. This year, the Commissioners awarded the Salem contracts to the lowest bidder, and last year they awarded them to the highest bidder, and it happens that the successful bidder is the same in both cases. This year, it is claimed, the figures of the successful bidder are below the whole-sale market costs.

This year the Commissioners advertised for 350 tons of steam coal for the Court Houses and 125 tons for the Salem jail. Salem and Beverly firms bid for the contracts, and the contract was awarded at $3.71 for a long ton, 2240 pounds of Maryland Company coal. This was the lowest bid.

The award of the contract at this figure created no comment for it was considered satisfactory, until a whole-sale coal dealer a resident of Salem, stated that the coal could not be landed on Salem wharves at the figures quoted in the contract. He stated that Maryland Company coal cost $3.15 per long ton in Philadelphia and that its freight to Salem costs 70 cents per ton, making the total cost per ton $3.85. In addition to these costs is the cost of landing coal on the wharf, which is commonly estimated at 15 cents per ton, so that the total upon Salem wharves would amount to $4.40 per ton. In addition there is the cost of delivering the coal.

Very likely, the award of the coal contracts this year would pass with no public criticism were it not for the fact that last year coal contracts was one of the subjects that brought harsh criticism upon the Commissioners, and caused scandalous charges.

From the Evansville Courier. E. Lathrop, who on Sunday morning at 5:15 o'clock loosed eighty homing pigeons belonging to a South Bend club, in Sunset Park, has received a letter from the bird's owners telling him of their flight.

A pigeon belonging to J. Korunski arrived home first, having made the 25 miles from here to South Bend in 7 hours, 36 minutes 45 seconds, an average of almost thirty-seven miles an hour. Three birds belonging to another man came in 10 seconds later. Within the next four minutes fifteen more birds arrived home. Of the eighty birds every one made the trip and at 10 o'clock Sunday night all were in their nests.

PIGEONS' FLIGHT ACROSS INDIANA.

Street cars of the convertible type, thoroughly up-to-date in equipment and construction are shortly to replace those now in service upon the Boston and Northern through line from this city to Boston. The cars are now being fitted with motors and trucks at the North Reading car barn.

The cars may be used either summer or winter. They stand much higher than the present type, having two steps instead of one. The doors open when the car is in motion, making it impossible for persons to board the car when in motion.

The cars have a seating capacity of six more persons than the largest box cars now in use. There are no vestibules, every inch of room being utilized. The motorman may pull a door about himself but this does not interfere with persons leaving by either door.

The cars are wired so that they may be run en train, an arrangement which may possibly be introduced upon the through lines ere long. The cars are built by the J. G. Brill Co., of Philadelphia, Pa.

Among those present were: May Connors, Della Cadorette, Mary Pluff, Louis Dionne, Annie Ouellet, Laura Galarneau, Eva Tanguay, Nellie Siefert, Annie Siefert, Emma Lorenz, May Suler, Ada Charest, Alphonsine Charest, Lucy Mollit, Elizabeth Keraghan, Mary Charon, Marie Langervin, Leoneda Molet, Rose Corapal, Annie Dubois, Eva Topping, Julia Pontbriand, Alma Fracourt, Alice Pomerleau, Mary Callahan, Albertine Gagnon, Julia Callahan of Haverhill, Pamela S. He said he did not hear the engine whistle as there was a single locomotive passing by him at the time. He said he knew the girl by sight, but did not know whether she was deaf or not.

Charles Clarke testified to seeing the girl passing diagonally across the tracks towards the track on which the passenger train was approaching. He said she seemed to be looking straight ahead as she walked the track in front of the train. He said he saw her struck and hurled to one side.

ESSEX STREET

SHEEP FOR MOUNTAIN

From the Denver Republican.

Thirty cars of sheep went up to the top of Rollins Pass on Tuesday, numbering 6,000 head. These sheep have been sent into this country by S. E. Burgess of Oregon, who is trying an experiment in ranging. The slopes of the pass are in Government reserves, and the owner pays six cents a head for the privilege of the range.

Mr. Burgess has examined the hills carefully and decided that there is plenty of good grass at the high altitudes, especially for sheep, which browse close. The cool nights will also be excellent for them, and they should take on wool as well as fat. One big saving that he figures on might not occur to the layman, and that is in the wool. Sheep ranging among brush will lose hundreds of pounds wool that is torn from them. On the mountain slope they will be free from that and the wool should also be clean and free from dirt when shearing time comes.

An interesting feature was the way that the sheep were unloaded on the pass Tuesday night. There are no pens and runways there, so the animals were made to jump out of the cars into the big snow banks and were then herded and driven down to the proposed ranges.

STRANGE WORK FOR WOMEN.

From the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Girls are displacing men in walks of life undreamed of only a decade ago," said August H. Kaems, deputy State factory inspector of Sheboygan. "Up in my own city girls have been working in the varnish rooms of the chair factories for almost twenty years and within the last ten years many others have found employment in one of the foundries enamelling kitchen utensils. Barring the intense heat in the rooms, the work is comparatively easy, though it does seem strange to find women in foundries."

"The bottling departments of the breweries also employ girls in preference to boys, and the work being almost entirely automatic, where other conditions are wholesome, little criticism can be made."

"It was not until I entered upon my present duties that I learned that girls are also being employed in tanneries. I am a tanner by trade, so that it was quite a surprise to me when I saw frail women perform work which fell to sturdy men in former years. These girls are principally employed in the chrome departments. In northern Wisconsin some of our inspectors have found women employed in sawmills."

CHILDREN'S HAIR USED FOR ANGEL'S HEADS.

Children's hair will be used to embroider an altar cloth which Miss Sheffield, a well known embroiderer of ecclesiastical work, has been commissioned to design. The hair, four tresses of which will be used, has been cut from the heads of four little girls, the children of a Roman Catholic lady who has given Miss Sheffield the commission. The design of the cloth will represent a flouting heart, having at the corners four angels in adoration. It is to embroider the heads of these angels that the hair—the colors of which range from the darkest auburn to the palest gold—will be used.
